FEDERAL CIRCUIT FURTHER CLARIFIES PRIOR ART DATE FOR NON-PATENT PUBLICATIONS

By: Jason D. Eisenberg

In Vidstream v. Twitter, the Federal Circuit affirmed unpatentability of Vidstream's patent in view of a book even though the copyright page of the version submitted had a later copyright date. Vidstream, LLC. v. Twitter, Inc., Case. 2019-00734, 00723 (Fed. Cir. Nov. 25, 2020). The Court stated whether a document is prior art under 35 U.S.C. § 102(a) is a legal determination, based on the specific facts. So it performed both de novo and substantial evidence review. Id., Slip Op. at 5-6.

U.S. PATENT AND TRADEMARK OFFICE ISSUES FINAL RULES AND COMMENTS IMPLEMENTING SAS, REMOVING PRESUMPTIONS FOR PETITIONER IN CERTAIN CIRCUMSTANCES, AND FORMALIZING SUR REPLIES

By: Jason D. Eisenberg

The U.S. Patent and Trademark Office Patent Trial and Appeal Board issued a final rule regarding institution, sur replies, and presumptions.

First, the Board changes 37 C.F.R. §§ 42.108 and 42.208 to implement SAS Institute Inc. v. Iancu, 138 S. Ct. 1348 (2018) by noting that "the Board will authorize the review to proceed on all of the challenged claims and on all grounds of unpatentability asserted for each claim." And these rules also state "the Board may deny all grounds for unpatentability for all of the challenged claims." Finally, all presumptions in favor of petitioner for patent owner evidence submitted with a patent owner preliminary response have been removed from the rules.

A final major change is a formalization of the sur reply and its formatting. This can be found in rules §§ 42.23 and 42.24.

FEDERAL CIRCUIT FURTHER CLARIFIES PRIOR ART DATE FOR NON-PATENT PUBLICATIONS

By: Jason D. Eisenberg

In Vidstream v. Twitter, the Federal Circuit affirmed unpatentability of Vidstream's patent in view of a book even though the copyright page of the version submitted had a later copyright date. Vidstream, LLC. v. Twitter, Inc., Case. 2019-00734, 00723 (Fed. Cir. Nov. 25, 2020). The Court stated whether a document is prior art under 35 U.S.C. § 102(a) is a legal determination, based on the specific facts. So it performed both de novo and substantial evidence review. Id., Slip Op. at 5-6. The Court looked to all the evidence submitted during the proceeding, e.g., the date of first publication, the copyright date of the copy deposited with the Library of Congress, the book's publication by an "established publisher," and evidence that the book was available for sale on Amazon, and not just the date shown in the exhibit submitted by Twitter to hold substantial evidence supported the USPTO's conclusion that the book was publicly accessible before VidStream's effective date. Id., Slip. Op. at 11.

Finally, the Court also addressed the timeliness of Twitter's evidence because it was not submitted with the Petition. Vidstream provided many arguments as to untimeliness, the Board acting improperly in considering the alleged late-filed evidence, that Vidstream had no fair opportunity to respond, and that the Board failed to grant a motion to exclude. Id., Slip Op. at 6-8. Without much explanation for why the evidence did not need to be submitted with the Petition, the Court held "[w]e conclude that the Board acted appropriately, for the Board permitted both sides to provide evidence concerning the reference date of the Bradford book, in pursuit of the correct answer." Id., Slip Op. at 8.

U.S. PATENT AND TRADEMARK OFFICE PATENT TRIAL AND APPEAL BOARD ANNOUNCED THREE NEW PRECEDENTIAL DECISIONS ON RPI AND JOINDER

By: Jason D. Eisenberg

The U.S. Patent and Trademark Office Patent Trial and Appeal Board has elevated three panel decisions to precedential this month.

RPX Corp. v. Applications in Internet Time, LLC*, IPR2015-01750, Paper 128 (Oct. 2, 2020) (precedential)

RPX focuses on real party in interest and the 35 U.S.C. § 315(b) time bar. Here, the Chief, Deputy Chief, and Vice Chief Judge of the Board issued the decision. In terminating and IPR, the Board noted that the Federal Circuit remanded this case after holding the petitioner was time-barred because the petitioner's client was an unnamed real party-in-interest that had been served with an infringement complaint more than one year before filing the petition.

SharkNinja Operating LLC v. iRobot Corp.*, IPR2020-00734, Paper 11 (Oct. 6, 2020) (precedential)

SharkNinja also focuses on real party in interest. Here the Board instituted and held that it does not need to resolve real party in interest if that decision does not impact the Board's institution decision. The Board held the parties need to provide the real party(ies) in interest in good faith.

Apple Inc. v. Uniloc 2017 LLC*, IPR2020-00854, Paper 9 (Oct. 28, 2020) (precedential)

This case focuses on joinder petition. The USPTO stated "This decision denying institution and the petitioner joinder motion applies the factors set forth in General Plastic to a copycat petition that the petitioner filed against the challenged patent after its first petition was denied institution."
